Jon and Roy to Bring Back That Summer Feeling with 'Let It Go'

NEWS | MAY 15 2012

By Alex Hudson

Two years removed from the relaxed, summery vibes of 2010's Homes, the Victoria, BC-based Jon and Roy are looking to recapture that sunny feeling with this year's Let It Go. It's due out June 12 through Blue Heron Music/Warner Music Canada.

A press release promises that these "laid-back acoustic guitar riffs, toe-tapping rhythms, and made-for-sing-along lyrics" add up to "the perfect summer album." The LP is said to contain ska-style horns and acoustic riffs, with a selection of mellow tunes and more upbeat material.

For a taste of this, listen to the bubbly folk ditty "Vibrant Scene" right here (a previous version from singer-guitarist Jon Middleton's solo album is streaming at the bottom of the page).

Middleton said in a statement, "We felt much more free on this album. It was a very natural process in this way, similar to how we would approach a live show."

See the tracklist below, and scroll past that to see the band's upcoming live schedule, which is entirely based in Alberta and British Columbia.

Let It Go:

- Mountain Town
- Vibrant Scene
- Let It Go
- Tavern Song
- Light Again
- Where We Gonna Go
